Comments /notes on tonight's mission and this interpretation: Started with last night's IR perimeter as a base for tonight's interpretation.  The incident continues to cool. No intense heat was detected tonight. Two small areas of scattered heat were mapped tonight, both on the west part of the incident. Only isolated heat sources were detected over the rest of the incident.  Three versions of the map have been uploaded – with three different backgrounds.  Questions, comments, please contact the IR interpreter via the contact info above.
